

Buying Better Baseball Gloves

Buying a good baseball glove can make a world of difference in your game. You need to buy a glove made from quality materials as they will last longer and be easier to use. And, of course, make sure the fit feels right. While you may want to buy a cheaper glove - sometimes it just doesn't pay as your game will suffer.

One thing you need to do is research the different manufacturers and price ranges. Find out which one is the best bang for the buck. Select a few that appeal to you then head out to the store and try the gloves on. Making sure they feel right and fit right are important. Here's some tips on what to look for in different types of gloves.

Catchers Gloves

Are you a serious player or just mess around behind the plate every once in a while? This could be a big deciding factor in your decision on which glove to buy as a good catcher's glove can cost you hundreds of dollars. If you only play a few times a year, then a professional grade glove might be too expensive for you. On the other hand, the good quality gloves are better made and more durable so it will probably last you a lifetime. The high quality gloves will feel better and also work better.

When picking out a catcher's glove you need to fit it to your hand. The pattern size of the glove is a measurement from the glove's heel where your wrist is to the top of the palm of the glove where your fingers start. A small glove for youths typically measures 8" to a foot, and an adult's glove has a measurement of 12 or 13 inches.

Baseball Gloves For Women

Baseball isn't just for boys and now more than ever young girls and women are joining in this all American sport.

There is a special challenge, however for women when shopping for baseball equipment and especially baseball gloves. Most baseball gear is still manufacturer with men in mind, and women, whose hands are much smaller, may have a hard time finding a good fit to their gloves.

Women shopping for baseball gloves need to look for gloves designed to fit a smaller and feminine hand. If you are fitted with a glove appropriate for the size of your hand you will find that you will play better. Look for smaller finger stalls which will give you better control. An adjustable wrist strap is desirable as it will allow you to adjust for fluctuations in fluids that can make your wrist a bit larger or smaller.

First Base Gloves

Any first baseman will tell you that first base gloves are very important when it comes to playing baseball.

One thing to look for in a good glove is to buy the right kinds of materials and webbing you need in a glove for playing at first base.

The most important thing is to think about how the glove feels. You should buy a size that feels good and is easy to handle. It's important that you can open and close the glove quickly and that your fingers have a snug fit but not too snug.

Shopping for the right baseball glove is as important as getting the right footwear or sneakers. Take your time and pick out a good glove and you might see your game improve!

Source: <http://www.articlecircle.com>

About the Author

Lee Dobbins writes for www.sports-wise.com where you can find out more about the sports you like to play. Visit their baseball articles archive at www.sports-wise.com/baseball-articles.html