

Adware Removal Tools: Why You Need Them

Do you need an adware removal tool? If your computer has been running slow, you're seeing new toolbars in your browser, your home page has changed, your internet favorites list has new unwanted entries or strange software loads when you start up your computer then your computer has probably been infected by adware. Now that you know you have an adware problem you should know what adware is.

Adware are programs that have the ability to track your internet browsing habits and even steal personal information like your bank account numbers and passwords. Adware programs are perfectly legal because most of these companies get your approval beforehand without you even knowing it. They hide licensing agreements in files that you would normally download like file sharing programs. Even though your infected adware can be gotten rid of by using a adware removal tool.

Primary Response Safe Connect is one of these adware removal tools. This adware removal tool provides instant detection and removal of adware without scanning. It also constantly updates to cover new threats automatically. Along with complete removal of all adware programs it eliminates all traces of the malicious programs and prevents reinstallation.

This adware removal tool is very easy to use and will only cost you about $25.

Acronis Privacy Expert Suite is another adware removal tool. This adware removal tool provides you with real time protection against adware programs. It not only provides protection against adware programs but also spyware parasites, rootkits, keyloggers, hidden dialers, browser jackers and other malicious programs. There is a trial download available but it will only tell you if you have any malicious programs on your computer, it won't get rid of any of them. To use this adware removal tool to get rid of these programs you will have to buy it for $30.

Super Anti Spyware Professional is another type of adware removal tool. This adware removal tool will basically do everything the others do and the cost is the same as the Acronis Privacy Expert Suite. It detects and removes malicious programs from your computer and protects against any further infestations. One new feature of this adware removal tool is that it scours the internet for new threats and provides you daily definition updates on these viruses.

Two other adware removal tools made by Lava Soft are Adware SE Professional and Adware Enterprise Edition. These are both very competent adware removal tools designed for businesses. They are designed to block aggressive adware programs and prevent reinstallation. Being designed for businesses both of these adware removal tools are available in several different languages and can be purchased over the internet or on a hard drive. These two adware removal tools are going to cost you about $40 apiece with an extra ten bucks for a backup copy.

Adware removal tools remove malicious adware programs from your computer. By removing these programs your computer can run more efficiently and you won't have to worry about being cyber stalked.

Source: <http://www.articlecircle.com>

About the Author

Guy Ray is a published web author on various subjects as well as a certified copywriter and webmaster. To learn more about protecting your computer from stealthy adware visit his site at <http://www.allonlineshoppingtips.com/adware-removal-tools.htm>