

Is It True That You Will Get Paid For Survey?

Nowadays, people are paid for doing little work online. What are they actually doing? You may have already heard about it or you may not have. Yes, it is true - you can get paid for survey participation.

Today more and more advertising companies offer the opportunity - it is good for them because they can service their marketing clients better; it is good for consumers because they can easily earn additional cash.

People working from home, students, housewives and many other people earn up to $500 per month just from completing several paid surveys.

What you need?

All you need in order to get paid for survey participation is to join a web site of a company gathering survey participants. Soon after you are approved, you will start receiving surveys.

The first survey may come on the same day you have joined or within the first two weeks. How soon this will happen and what amount of surveys you will be receiving per day or per month depends on your profile - if you are a male or a female, your age and interests.

This is because each company is conducting researches within specific target groups - for example, consumer reviews for a new lipstick will be addressed to females, age 25 to 47, of certain income level and even social status; new sports equipment survey may be sent to both male and female who pointed out that they are interested in sports.

If you have plenty of free time, you can join several marketing agencies. Thus, you are increasing the chance to receive surveys more often and earning more money.

What rewards are given?

Bear in mind that some surveys do not offer money rewards. Instead, to get paid for survey participation, you may receive a product or a service as a gift.

For example you may receive a discount on some of the products from the company that ordered the survey, free trials, coupons, samples or you may even enter a price draw.

It sounds so easy to get paid for survey participation. However, you still need to "do your homework" before joining any paid survey programs. A few things to watch out for:

- What are the application terms especially if a membership fee is required;
- Is the site legal;
- Is it a real marketing company but not a pyramid company;
- In case you are offered paid access to a database of companies looking for people to participate in their surveys - try to find the same lists for free (there are so many web sites that will offer you the same information for free)
- Be very careful about privacy issues.

Most of these sites are free, other's ask for a minor membership fee. However before paying always check if you can find the same or similar services at another free site.

So, you have to do it to believe it. I know of a friend who are making at least $100 to $200 each day just by doing online surveys.

Get paid to do online surveys is really a new paradigm shift in the 21st century and now you can be part of it. Therefore, I strongly urged you to start your journey and get paid for survey as soon as possible, if you are serious of making some extra spare cash.
