

Gold Investing - "Times Are Changing"

Do you remember your history lessons in school? Were you paying attention? You may recall lessons that discussed the weight of gold or the history of gold in the world. Gold has been used for purchasing, bartering and collecting throughout history. Gold has even been a hedge against inflation and helps to preserve and protect future earnings of Americans.

Today, we can purchase, trade or make a gold investment in a variety of ways. Gold comes generally in two forms, also called bullion, these forms are coins or bars made of gold. With trading, most investors trade in gold futures on the market. Gold Investments are often made in refining or mining companies.

If you take a look at history, you will begin to notice that gold was very helpful all through the changing times. It provided a safe avenue during times when the world's economy was unstable. For major gold investors, gold can improve a portfolio and decrease the amount of risk.

There is a variety of avenues when it comes to gold investing. The options for invest are; gold coins, bars, statement accounts, accumulative plans, mine shares and mutual funds.

Possibly the most popular avenue of gold investment is in coins and bars. There are different sizes and weights available to invest in. Some of the weights include 1 gram, 1 kilobar and the international bar. But that's not all.

An investment in gold bars is one way to produce cost efficient methods of investing in gold. This is because broker commissions are minimal for selling and purchasing gold bars. Gold coins are as popular among small and medium investors. The reason for this is that in the issuing country, gold coins are considered legal tender and guaranteed for their face value even through economic changes.

Some of the leading gold coins include:

- *The American eagle- It is available in weights of 1/10, 1/20, 1/40 and 1 troy ounce
