Electric movements are made possible using the handlebars that are located in front of you while sitting in the three-wheel scooter chair. The handles look a bit like bicycle handlebars will look. Soft rubber grips are located on each side of the handlebars for those who are sitting in the scooter for a few hours to have easy mobility with the hand controls. For the disabled, the ease of using a scooter is all a choice. Many have electronic handles, joysticks, and even foot controls. Enjoy your freedom using a scooter of your personal choice for mobility.

If you have been in an accident and you have a leg in a cast, or perhaps you have both legs in a cast, a scooter will be your leg! You can get from room to room at school or in the home. A scooter is going to put your back into action, giving you the ability to do things for yourself, without having to wait for someone to do something for you. Use a scooter to get to school, to get to church, to get to the store, or get out in the driveway and soak in some sun if you have the urge.

After an accident in a car, while skating, while skiing or even while biking you could feel very stiff, and sore. With broken bones, it is very difficult to manage a wheel chair. If you have had an operation or if you have had an accident, a scooter is an electric mobility tool. You will be able to get around without having to strain your arms or even your back. Some people find they are healing better as they get to move around a little bit, get out of bed and do any thing for their selves.

Advantages Of Owning A Scooter

After an accident, you want to do things but can't move around too well. You can use a scooter to get out, get to work, get to the store and see the doctor without having to use crutches or a manual wheel chair. A scooter is going to fold up, and you can store it in a closet, by your bed, or in the van. After you are healed, and you are walking again, putting the scooter away in storage in the house is always a good idea.
