

A Guide To Finding Refurbished Treadmills

A treadmill is a great way to get in shape or stay in shape. While many people go to the gym to use their treadmills, it makes sense to have one at home, too. But if you want a top of the line treadmill, you are going to have to pay top of the line prices for it. Like anything else, with treadmills, you get the quality you pay for, so spending money for a good treadmill is an excellent investment if you plan to use it regularly. One great option for finding an affordable treadmill is to consider purchasing a refurbished treadmill.

A refurbished treadmill is a lot different than a used treadmill. A used treadmill is almost always in used shape, which means a major breakdown could happen at any time. With a used treadmill, often you have no idea what you are getting, and treadmill repairs can be very expensive. The motors alone can cost a small fortune.

On the other hand, a refurbished or re-manufactured treadmill has been returned to the manufacturer, taken apart and totally rebuilt. Any older or worn-out parts have been replaced. It has been re-painted and made to look as good as new. The best part about re-manufactured exercise equipment is that it comes with a warranty, which is usually six months for parts and labor. If it doesn't come with a warranty, don't buy it. Any reputable company selling this kind of equipment should offer a warranty of some kind.

For instance, a Precor treadmill can run $4995 for a new one. By searching online at reliable online sites that sell refurbished exercise equipment, there are plenty for sale for between $2550 to $3325. Precor is just one of the brands that makes and distributes quality exercise equipment that is intended for use at fitness centers or for the fitness enthusiast. This is a great way to buy your favorite treadmill at the gym for your own home at a discounted price.

It is nice to know that this type of equipment looks as good as new and is going to provide dependable service while getting it for a sale price. There's nothing better than that for someone who wants to have a treadmill at home to stay in shape on days when you can't or don't want to go out to your local fitness center.

So, when looking for a refurbished treadmill, it makes sense to check that it comes with a warranty, and that it has actually been re-manufactured by the company. Do some comparison shopping, and check online ratings for the best treadmills in this category and reputable places to buy them. You could be running or walking on your own top of the line treadmill in no time.

Source: <http://www.articlecircle.com>

About the Author

Bob Hett makes it easy to find the treadmill information you are looking for. Get the answers that you are seeking by visiting <http://www.treadmillsreview.info>