

Carnival Rides - Which One Suits You

When ever you travel to a carnival you will find that there are many different types of carnival rides for you to select from. These carnival rides can have assorted height restrictions for children in order to adhere to certain safety conditions. Other than this consideration many of the carnival rides are configured for family fun. Let us now look at the basic rides and some of their characteristics. This will give you a better understanding for when you decide to go to a theme park.

There are so many dissimilar carnival rides that you can go on. These rides can be the various roller coasters where you shout at the top of your lungs as you rush down steep inclines, sure that at any moment you will fly through the air and land with a thump on the ground. The other variation on roller coaster carnival rides is the monster water log rides. You know the one, where you think you are going to get just a little wet. Ha, ha the joke is on you - you get a lot wet.

Here you slowly ride up the carnival ride until you reach the top, all of a sudden your hollowed out log canoe tips over that little edge and you rush down a slippery incline full of gushing water. You are by this time screeching with fear and total excitement. These roller coaster rides are the ultimate in an adrenaline rush.

Now if you are feeling brave you can visit the ultimate in chilling carnival rides. The Haunted House with its eerie ambiance is just ready and waiting for you to enter through its cobweb filled doorway. There are some carnival rides where you must go through a maze that is filled with eerie characters. Most of which come out of the corner and catch you by surprise. Besides the characters, you also have the make shift props that simulate the real live version. Now, when the time comes, you can also visit the carousal rides.

You will find these fantastic carousals filled with animals from your imagination. Take a gentle ride around on these gentle animals. Let your imagination run wild here. You can also let the wild driver in you out for the day when you go on one of the classic carnival rides - bumper cars. This is where we lose all inhibitions. The feeling of being behind the wheel of these floating vehicles gives us enough reason to plow into all the other bumper cars.

In addition to these types of carnival rides you can find rides for kids. There are train rides that take the children through versatile parts of the carnival. And many times have a tour guide, explaining the different parts of the park. This gives it the real world experience. Sometimes you can visit a petting farm so that your children can interact with the small animals. Another type of carnival ride that kids love is the water rides where they can just get wet and have tons of water fun.

Since carnival, amusement parks and theme parks are all configured with families in mind, you will see many dissimilar carnival rides that are just begging you to ride them. The only real problem that you might experience at these places is which carnival rides should be seen and ridden on first. And do you comply with the height regulations. Some parks just are so big it is a good idea to make it a weekend event. This way you are sure to see and visit all the places of the park you want.

So the next time that you go to an entertainment park, theme park or even to a carnival, just let the youngster in you out and have tons of screaming fun. Carnival rides are made for you to become a child once more. And besides, you have an excuse and that is you are at a theme park. The only requirement is that you do have tons of fun.

Source: <http://www.articlecircle.com>

About the Author

Bowe provides free information on a variety of hot topics. Visit his Theme Park site and: <http://themepark.infoforuonline.com>. Gather free theme park information.